PROJECTS PLAN OF INDEPENDENT STEAMSHIP LINE

H. S. Bates Issues Report on Eastern Negotiations for Enterprise

Local Co-operation Needed to Establish San Francisco-Panama Traffic

Secretary of War Eager to Assist Movement Beneficial to California

An independent line of steamships between San Francisco and Panama will be established soon if local enterprise co-operates. This fact was made public yesterday by H. S. Bates of the shipping firm of Bates & Chesebrough, who gave out a report on his recent negotiations for the new enterprise.

Bates will issue a complete report to the local traffic organizations, and upon their action will depend the fate of the projected service. If the shippers in these local traffic organizations give a sufficient amount of freight under a definite contract, Bates & Chesebrough will proceed to establish the line.

Bates points out that it would be futile to inaugurate a service which would be forced to withdraw after a regular low rate placed in effect for a temporary period by rival lines, anything of the proposition for such a line. Bates said:

Bates Discusses Project

"After consultation with numerous ship owners and shippers, forwarders and others with a knowledge of the business I am of the opinion that the time is ripe for the new line could be established and maintained on a profitable basis, independently of any interested shippers and a guaranteed tonnage of 20,000 to 25,000 per month, the new line would be established and with the co-operation of shippers by means a paying proposition may be made for the benefit of the coast."

"It is important to note that an average rate of approximately over $11.19 a ton must be made on cargo from San Francisco to New York in order to allow the government to meet expenses on its part of the deal. For carrying the freight by rail across the country and from Colon by rail to New York the government would receive 15 per cent of the through rate. This rate is below the prices recently made for a big cut under the rail schedule.

"For the present the government would be willing to enter the independent line by delivering to it which provide the land from the Isthmus to San Francisco on westbound freight. Rates proposed the latter but a particular trade could be worked up between Pacific coast points and Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile and other gulf and South Atlantic ports. He figures also that a trade for Orient products could be arranged to Panama.

Assistance Offered

Bates owes his report to letting of the assistance rendered him in the negotiations by William H. Wheeler. He mentions that he met Secretary of War Wright, who has control of canal affairs, and found that the secretary, the California shippers, a Boston syndicate and others were in favor of the rate giving the proposed independent line 10 per cent of the through traffic. This is of found impossible under the circumstances, but the Panama government to maintain an "open door" policy for all shippers, the Isthmian, giving at times like treatment.

Finished at the end of the negotiations arrangement, Bates says:

"However, the secretary of war did seem to think that in consideration of co-operation a reduction should be between San Francisco and La Boca, the Pacific terminal of the Panama railroad on our line all freight moved from San Francisco and consigned to San Francisco which might not be specifically contrary to Pacific Mail. This agreement was made with the idea of forming the interests of both shippers and consignees and would, of course, redound to the credit of the Pacific Mail or other competitors if they proposed to use the rail portion of a direct service. Further, that if a second line should duplicate service to put on, in consideration of the rate, the freight would be forwarded by the first vessel leaving La Boca.

Fact and Figures

After adding up all the high port charges of $1.25 per ton at La Boca and the actual cost of handling the proposal.

"I am assured that the cost to the government of handling cargo from Colon to New York is not over $1.50 per ton which, added to the railroad cost, would mean that an average rate of something over $11.19 must be paid on cargo from San Francisco to New York in order to allow the government to charge its 15 per cent profit, to cover expenses on the transportation that the Pacific carrier can operate at a profit.

BRITTON SHIES AT GAS SCANDAL

Objects to Reference to Boodle and Denies That Company Gave Bribes

Lively Tilt Occurs at Meeting of Supervisors Called to Fix Rates

The ghost of the gas company's past walked with heavy tread through the rule-bound corridors last night in the board of supervisors. John A. Britton, president of the corporation, stood with his coughing ghost the complaint that some good, Mr. Britton objected to reference to boodle and bribery. Mr. Britton said he was not responsible for the acts of his predecessors. The gas company had never given any money to any supervisor. The gas company had never given any money to any supervisor. # BURKE PLANS TO ARREST BUCKLEY FOR STOCK DEAL

Declares Warrant for Embezzlement Will Be Sworn To at Once

Former Political Boss Denounces Accusations as Malicious Lies

Bitter Recriminations and Avalanche of Threats Follow Filing of Suit

BRUCE recrimination and an avalanche of threats erupted yesterday from the storm centred up Wednesday through the filing of a suit for damages and accounting against Chris Buckley, former political boss, by Edmund Burke, who claims to represent 20 or more stock holders of the United Sugar Refineries gathering company, of which Buckley is general manager. Buckley counterattacks Burke on "the most ludicrous scandal ever came into the state," and Burke says he intends to have Buckley arrested on an embezzlement charge.

"I have nothing against Buckley personally and am acting only in behalf of the stock holders of this company," Burke said yesterday. "Whatever judgment may accrue from this suit, the money will be turned into the treasury of the company for the benefit of all the stockholders, including Buckley himself. I am going in Los Angeles Sunday night, and on Monday I shall apply for warrants for the arrest of Buckley, C. L. Valentine and A. H. Duke for embezzlement. I shall swear to the complaints which will be the charge."

BRANDS CHARGES FALSE

"This is rank fiction, pure and simple," Buckley. "So generally to be a lawyer, but to be a lawyer who has been looked up now and I think will be looked up later, I should think would look in a case of this character, nothing but outrageous lies from start to finish. I am now in Los Angeles, in Los Angeles, where I understand the warrants are to be sworn to, which the public will be surprised to learn have a good deal angst life.

Burke yesterday repeated the charge that Buckley had corrupted United States Senator Frank P. Flint, James Barker, William Kent and others, and had paid not $200 for them. The stock market in question, he said, was made an average price of $1 per share, and Buckley, Valentine and Duke subscribed 1 share each, the price which accurred in October, 1906. Burke claims that Buckley, Valentine and Duke "$1,000 of the company's funds, expended in the purchase of stock in the Valentine, and Duke, and Buckley the wealth taking up on the company's books in February of 1907, and at times up to the October, 1907, when the company's stock was worth $1 per share, given in consideration of his services."

EXPLAINS TRANSACTION

Buckley admits that the $1,000 transaction was entirely legitimate, he declares that stock of the company was then being issued for services rendered, and that Flint, Barker, Kent, Duke, Valentine, Yagle, Duke and E. S. Phillips was placed in escrow. Phillips, he said, was employed by the company, and Duke was employed in cutting stock Phillips said that he bought of Flint and Barker, paying money instead of selling counsel stock in payment for services, and that the transaction, Phillips was not entitled to receive on his account, Buckley declared.

Buckley says that Phillips having been paid for his services, he thought there was no reason why he should not get $1500 for services that he rendered, and that it was Phillips himself who entered the course to the account of the company, and that he (Buckley) made Phillips sign an affidavit to the effect that he was not entitled to receive any money from the company. Buckley declares that Burke's charge is false in every detail, and that Burke is carrying on a vendetta against Buckley, because he (Burke) was not given the job of the company's counsel.

Burke's charge that Buckley and Valentine had "looted the company" was given no credence by the latter company without cost and that both knew the company was being looted. This applied, he said, to all stock holders, and he (Burke) represented a large number of them, to which the company was not carried over to the treasury of the company.

DENIES ALL CHARGES

Buckley denies all charges of crime or misappropriation of funds, declares that Burke's charge that he (Burke) was "cheated out of a fortune," and recently been making in export schemes and that Burke has never defaced every opportunity to examine the books of the company, that Burke never formed a single, honest, honest, proved a failure, but an insignificant, and that Burke's suit is being secondary worked out by Prof. Hugo Munsterberg, of Harvard, psychologist.

Attorneys Berry Schlesinger and J. J. Dwyer, representing Burke, yesterday refused to make any comment, but prepared last night the complaint in behalf of Edmund Burke. They also asserted that attachments would be sought against the property of Buckley, Valentine, Duke, D. C. and Sub President, the latter of the company, claiming that he had not been in the state for the last two years.

Buckley's statement was given out by Schlesinger and Dunne in behalf of the defendants.

ATTORNEYS' STATEMENT

With reference to the proceedings of Edmund Burke against our clients, Chris Buckley, C. L. Valentine, A. H. Duke, Buckley is the general manager, Valentine is the vice president, and Duke is the secretary of the United Sugar Refineries company, we have to say that the charge of embezzlement is false in every detail, and that the charge of fraud is false in every detail, and that the charge of fraud is false in every detail, and that the charge of fraud

ARREST NEGRO FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

New Suspect Jailed in Case of Brutal Assault on Miss Gropper

SAN RAFAEL, Feb. 11.—With the arrest of John Mills, a negro, whose handcuffed and shirt were found stained with blood, and with the probable unknown tobacco of John Zass, who has been in the custody on suspicion, the case of Miss Elizabeth Gropper, who was brutally attacked last Saturday night in Fifth street, today took a new aspect.

Mills denied, moreover, by the intimacies of his Zassmen proper Miss Miss Gropper was swelling party to the assault, but the charges made by Dr. S. M. Augustine, foreman of the jury, that the negro had been seen going his path date to the investigation at the crime, and the sheriff's statement that Dr. Augustine has gladly gave orders that he be released from custody, the negro was brought before the magistrate, charged with vagrancy, tried, found guilty and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

Dr. Augustine, who is a Chinese, was arrested, with attendant, he is to be confronted by Miss Gropper tomorrow morning, when the girl will be able to identify the negro beyond doubt. Mills, who is a mulatto, is known to Detective Allsopp, who arrested him, and to Chief of Police Gallagher, who has been in the city for the past two weeks, with the exception of a few days, Mrs

The Memory of Lincoln

TODAY the nation halts for a moment from the march of business and everyday affairs to do honor to the memory of the greatest American since Washington. It would be hard to institute comparisons. Washington and Lincoln were essentially different. We do not measure the power and splendor of the ocean by the magnificence of the mountains. Each is great in its own way. The nation does reverence to the characters of the men who have made its history illustrious.

It may be said that Lincoln was the greatest American as the type has developed. His kindly courtesy, his judicial temperament, his acute and sensitive rude sense of humor, his great heart and large sympathies were characteristic of the best evolution of the American man. Lincoln has been called "the man of sorrows," and surely no other of his countrymen has been faced by a burden so heavy. The undiscipline and at the same time cheerful temper with which he carried through a period of sorrow and suffering and prostrated a weaker mind was a distinctively American trait. It has been said of the people of San Francisco that in the cataclysm of 1906 they carried themselves with "a gay courage." That is American. That was Lincoln.

His own words are immortal. We speak not now of the marvelous address at Gettysburg that has made a model of condensed eloquence for all time, but of the second inaugural, when he held up to the Americans people a picture of what might have been since from his own personality:

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations.

Undoubtly fate did not permit that he should finish that work and bind up the nation's wounds. But the lasting peace that he foresaw has come for him and for his countrymen, and north and south today, East and West, they do him honor, realizing in him the portrait drawn by James Russell Lowell:

For lowly, earnest, brave, humane,
Sagacious, patient, dreading praise, not blame
New faith in our new era, the first American.

Lincoln's greatest monument is in the love of his countrymen. He is saint, hero and statesman, and, withal, the most imposing figure of the nineteenth century. In the words of William Edward Hall: "Certain it is that we have never had a man in public life whose sense of duty was stronger, whose bearing toward those with whom he came in contact, whether his friends or political opponents, was characterized by a greater sense of fairness than Abraham Lincoln. We have never had a man in public life who took upon himself uncompromisingly the woes of the nation and suffered in soul from the weight of them as he did. And we have never had a man in our history who had such a mixture of lovingness, of manly standing of the people, of common sense, of high sense of duty, of power of reasonable speech and confidence in the goodness of God in working out a righteous result as this great product of the soil of Kentucky and Illinois."

United Railroads Promises

An unlimited supply of promises and a plentiful lack of performance will characterize the history of the United Railroads. It used to be the case that Mr. Thornwell Mullally was the abilebodied undertaker on this job for the corporation, sufficient for all purposes of humbug, but now apparently the work has grown so heavy that he is incapacitated for duty in assistance to help him make his woes. In the meantime nothing is done. The streets are left in ruins and the obligations of the company are not fulfilled.

The United Railroads holds as a free gift from the city franchises worth $20,000,000. The conditions attached to this great gift are that the company shall keep the streets paved between its tracks and shall give reasonable good service. Neither of these conditions—trifling as they are in view of the magnitude of the concession—is fulfilled. When the city officials call attention to this neglect they are put off with more promises.

It has turned a good deal in the last month, but there has been plenty of fine weather since April, 1906, and a wet month does not excuse the neglect and broken promises of early in three years. In all that period we have been hearing of the wonderful things the company was going to do and in all that time the streets have lain in ruins as they still lie, and the service has been bad. The truth is that the management is lamentably incompetent in any field but stock jobbing and politics.

Vest City's Rights in Hetch Hetchy

SPRING VALLEY has made thrifty use of the overworked sycophancy of the so called "business men," some of whom are on the corporation payroll and many of whom have never even seen the ground which they profess to hold sacred, although they have not the slight elementary conception of the change proposed to be made some of whose acreage. The Mr. Underwood Johnson of the Century magazine, do not hesitate to misrepresent the facts of the situation, as we have already had occasion to show in large columns. Mr. Johnson, addressing the senate committee on public lands on Wednesday, is reported to have said:

We think that the company is not a grinding monopoly, first, because the water rates are not fixed by the company, second, Spring Valley has offered to sell it a price fixed by arbitration; third, it is not undisputed fact that the city can continue under right of mineral domain.

Who fixes water rates in San Francisco? The rates now under reflection were determined by the company. The board of supervisors has fixed none of the rates collected since 1902 and the municipal control in this regard has been a ridiculous fiction of law for half a dozen years. The rates that have been collected are out of all proportion higher than in any other city of like magnitude in America. If this does not constitute a grinding monopoly, perhaps Mr. Johnson will give us a better definition.

It is not true that Spring Valley has offered to sell at a price fixed by arbitration or by anybody but the officials of the company. The single offer to sell at a named price far beyond the value estimated by experts was withdrawn a few hours after it was made. The legal obstacles that make condemnation impossible in a transaction of this magnitude have been frequently explained to Mr. Johnson, but that does not appear to make any difference to him.

The truth is that Johnson and his kind are trying to ride two horses traveling in different directions. At one moment they make themselves champions of Spring Valley as the perfect and impeccable corporation. In the next they broad the loss of a mosquito ridden meadow for which it is proposed to substitute a mountain lake. If they are unable to show that the change would not improve the scenery and its general effect they get back at once to the fictitious woes of Spring Valley. Their familiarity with Mr. Bonin's manufactured commodity of lament might serve to indicate its source.

The Japanese Incident Closed

In the meantime San Francisco is not dependent on the action of congress in this matter. The city has the permit of the secretary of the interior and should proceed at once to vest its rights under that grant.

THE CALL has not at any time believed that the disturbance at Sacramento was anything more serious than a loud noise. While we realized that the Japanese question is the most important and most difficult one to be dealt with, we felt that the coast states it was obvious that the course taken up by certain busybodies in the legislature was ridiculous and would do more harm than help. So we have from the beginning relied on the good judgment of their colleagues to hold down these obstreperous people, whose hearts may be in the right place, albeit they suffer the inconvenience of not having their heads on straight.

This has been a sort of double barreled tempest. The east has been quite as noisy as California and more abusive. The press of the yellow writers beyond the mountains have been going like dizzy, but to all that one says "Pulitzer!" They will have forgotten their fury in a week and will be ready to concede that the important matter in hand of the nation is the preservation of a homogeneous America for white men. This country has one race question on its hands now and does not know what to do about it. We can ill afford to take on with our eyes open another of these dangerous questions. The episode or incident now closed will have its uses in bringing the occasionally uproarious and abusive easterner to his senses when a calmer frame of mind shall supervene. When the excitement of the moment has passed he will see that California stuff there will come a tardy sense that blood is thicker than water.

Jewels of Abd-El-Aziz

During the last 14 months the jewels of Abd-el-Aziz have been at the Mint—in plain English, in Paris. The sum lent was about $25,000. Some of the jewels are said to be valuable, but nearly all the lot is worthless. The rate of interest is 7 per cent, with a commission of 1 per cent charged. The question is now seriously considering whether the loan should be renewed or whether the jewels shall be sold publicly, after the fashion of Mr. Andrew Carnegie's gifts.

Roman Antiquities Found

An interesting discovery has been made near La Suze Nonpoulin, the ancient Forum Julii, in the department of Var. It is a Roman gift of a bronze vase, with a cover, and hooped with iron. Some 40 coins were found near stone, and the vase, when opened, was found to contain a silver vase, enclosed, it appears, in the Roman Latin inscriptions. The vase has been placed in the museum at Aix, in the place where the collection of Roman antiquities recently found in Provence is being formed.

ARMSTRONG GROVE PURCHASE

Santa Rosa, Cal., Feb. 11, '99.

Editor Call: I noticed with interest your article in yesterday's issue headed "Small Domestic Sales," signed "A Novice." Now, I am a novice myself, and I know of no reason why a novice should not exercise a little knowledge, even at the expense of the other sections, and generally property so acquired costs the people more than property which is purchased through people who know it all. Perhaps, too, but as soon as there is a possibility of a little knowledge being spread around, it is a good thing to have it in the hands of the state, and the public interest is perhaps greater the more people who know they are public spirited, more. We now have a state park, and I know of no reason why a little more of the same sort of transactions. I refer to the purchase of the Armstrong grove.

The writer has lived in Sonoma county, and in Santa Rosa, for about twenty years. Armstrong grove was purchased years ago. Walter Armstrong—knowing that the grove was worth $50,000, with no buyer at that time, and knowing that the grove was for sale, which I understand has been offered for $150,000, by D. M. La Rocque, of Oakland.

Why is it that our representative in congress, who knows that the grove is for sale, and who knows that it is worth $150,000 or more, and who knows that it is not worth over $100—to say nothing of $150,000—

There is no reason why the grove should not be purchased by the people, and not in such a way that the people should be robbed. I have forwarded to The Call for publishing the letter of Mr. Armstrong, which I hope to be heard and read by congressman Kahn, for it is that the people get value received in this business.

Difficult to Imitate Diamonds

Diamonds are the only gems cut on the crown of the rose. Perhaps this apparent simplicity has not only made them difficult to imitate, but has been one of their chief protectors. Not long ago a jeweler said to a friend of mine, "Why don't you make a rose cut diamond? I can't tell it from the real one." The friend replied, "I can tell it at a glance." Upon being challenged to do so, he pointed to the flat surface of the stone, which was of a different color from the rest of the diamond.

The jeweler experimented, produced a perpendicular mark, discovered, but in the future, of course, Mr. Andrew Carnegie's gifts will be sold publicly, after the fashion of the "Independent." Written evidence of the genuineness of the jewels will be provided with the lot. Chicago Tribune.

The Insider

Tells of wealth and other advantages possessed by the speaker of the state assembly that make him most eligible man from a metropolitan standpoint in Sacramento

SPEAKER Philip Ashley Stanton from a metropolitan standpoint, is the most eligible man in Sacramento today, and perhaps in the state. He is a bachelor, 43 years of age, rich, amiable and inclined to be good looking. He comes west in search of health and settled in this locality, being impressed with the possibilities of it becoming at some time the largest and wealthiest city in the world. This decided him to settle here and stay. He made a large investment in a ranch and then started into the business of getting a fortune.

As a preliminary he purchased a large tract of land near Brooklyn, which is close to Alameda, and planted English walnuts, which now bring him in a large income. This he regard as his main hold upon being a mover of fact hence and has several of the "get" of Belle McKinney.

Total drinking was and is still his passion, and he is never so happy as when jollying the drinkers. His rightness are among the best in the state, and safest amateur ship he is second only to Captain William Benning. But then, again, that drinking has its limitations when pursued to a fad by a man of his disposition. He was a friend of Walter Parker—and the descent, as old Virgil says, was easy.

"Phil," as he is better known, has a house in Los Angeles, a handsome office in Bay City, just below Long Beach, and a home dwelling at his ranch, and large English walnut trees.

Are not these advantages enough to make him a most eligible man in a matrimonial sense?

Demman School Pupils Mourn Old Principal

A great many ex-pupils of the old Demman school, at Bush and Taylor streets, sincerely mourned the death of their old friend and former principal, Mr. Demman, who died at Santa Rosa last week. A good many of these ex-pupils have become prominent in the world since. Mrs. Herbert Croker, who first attended the Demman school a few terms, her father belonging to the democracy of the public school, Mrs. Edward Moore, Robinson (Alvine Teers) was a Demman pupil. Charlotte Thompson, the old veteran, and sister Marie, the actress, graduated from the Demman school. But there are a hundred or so who have made names on the stage as actresses or singers, and business men, golders, bridge contractors, bridge tenders and other professions, who could reminiscence over the days when the late James Demman was their school principal.

ANSWER TO QUERIES

NORTHWEST SAND RECLAMATION—Write to the secretary of the Northwestern Sand Reclamation Company, Seattle, Wash.

Any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old may take a homestead of 160 acres of unappropriated public land in the United States or Alaska. The applicant must make oath that he is a citizen, or has taken steps to naturalize, and that he has not taken more than one half year in the aggregate of any land in the United States or Alaska, and that he will not sell or lease the land for the benefit of any other person than himself, or any person from whom he has received any money, or any other consideration for the same, and that he will cultivate and reside upon the land for a period of three years, and make proof of the same, or, in lieu thereof, pay the Government the value of the land, $1.25 per acre, and make proof of the same.

A certain portion of a homestead is most valuable for timber, and the law provides that a person may purchase a quarter section of timber land, which is worth twenty times the price of a homestead, provided he has lived upon the homestead for three years, and has made proof of the same, and has cultivated the timber land for a period of three years. Duplicate proofs are required in each homestead and timber land entry.

A homestead of 160 acres of timber land is worth $20,000 and one that adjoins it, which is worth $1.25 per acre, can be purchased for $200. Duplicate proofs are required in each homestead and timber land entry.

CONSOLIDATED—A Subscriber, City. What is the price of Consolidated Virginia?

It is said that Consolidated Virginia is worth $1 per share, and that it is worth more than that, but the last sale of which we have any record, or could find in newspapers in the past year, was at 90 cents per share. ## O'BRIEN FORTUNATE TO LAND MATCH WITH KETCH.

Dick Hyland Is Now Clamoring for a Chance at Battling Nelson

By William J. Slattery

The matching of Stanley Ketchel and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien for a 20-round go in the Quaker city during the middle of March has proved to be the pacific measure of the powers that the local fans were inform entitled to worries when the news was broken yesterday. It looks like a good money getting proposition for somebody, and nobody believes that Willie Britt will go around and try to spoil the goose that's all the deal, for here lies the silver lining to the cloud.

The making of the match is unfortunate for Britt, as they all think that his manoeuvring and nothing else is responsible for it. Britt had been clamoring with Jack McCarthy, the Philadelphia promoter, for many days, and it looked as if he had succeeded in getting O'Brien and Ketchel before the crowd connected by Jake Kilrain. Jack McCarthy wired Britt that he would put up $1000 on his end, and if that failed Kilrain had a very fortunate young man.

Britt saw that the man hunt would have to close with the match made by the city promoter, and he knew that unless they would fall each other's throat and cut each other's throat, there would be no room for Offerman after the match had been made. Britt knew that Ketchel would have to meet Jack Kilrain and Offerman, and he knew that Kilrain is

MISGUIDED PLUNGES ARE FREQUENT AT EMERYVILLE

Charlie Ellison Gives Bookies a Scare by Backing His Horse, J. C. Core

By J. R. Jeffery

The local race going public, sustained power judgment some time ago when it backed Ben Brush to prosperity winner at Gravesville that made the greatest sensation ever seen, and the consequence was that bookmakers generally were left against the horses that finished first in the event, tied to 3. Judge Quinn at 1, Lincoln at 12, Lone at 15 and the Fox at 20 respectively.

Instead of winners of minor prominence the unexpected came true in the Emeryville event, which was the exception of Lincoln and Judge Quinn, the favorites, and the public was short, and had plenty of room for many of support. Meanwhile pioneer bookmakers who had taken the public's money on Ben Brush and Lincoln had won enough to lay Quinn, Mission, Lone and the Fox, and Charlie Ellison, a bookmaker, who had taken the money mostly found down the odds on Core, and had laid Lincoln, Lone and the Fox, was one of the winner's concerned in fattening within the money.

ELLISON BLUSHES, BUT WARNS.

The Pigeon is now that the field mutuel pools are closed, Charlie Ellison, who was the only bookmaker who had the courage to cover the dog on his horse J. C. Core, and who had taken the money from his sporting friends, blushed and blushed naturally the British hunter very, as he was the only bookmaker who had taken the money of the public and forced wonders to the pari-mutuel. The bookies who had laid Lone and the Fox, instead of a double bonanza, had to be satisfied discount disappointed at the head of the winner, and the bookies who had laid Lincoln and Mission had to be satisfied with great consolation, overlook 10th and 12th respectively, and the bookies who had laid Ben Brush, Judge Quinn, Core and Lone had to be satisfied with the knowledge that they had laid the winner of the Emeryville handicap, and that the unfortunate public had taken the money, and therefore the pressure time out, but had lost the money, and therefore the pressure time out, and the bookies had the occasion upon them. Lone was not the only horse in the Emeryville handicap that, for who the player, and the bookies had laid the money, and the bookies had taken the money, and the public had lost the money.

The officials were inclined to attribute the unusual results to the fine condition that allowed them to pass the winner of the Emeryville.

THE CROWD LOOKS FOR TROUBLE.

The crowd looks for back under clever handling in the Emeryville handicap, and Wally Shaffer, who had taken the public's money on Lincoln, and had laid Core, Lone and the Fox, and had taken the money, but decided, and had taken the money, and had laid Core, and had taken the money, and had laid Core, and had taken the money, and had laid Core

Foreign Influences Contribute to Dull Strength on Change

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb 11—The dull strength in today's market was ascribed in large part to foreign influences and was so echo of the dull analogous by the best element in the operations in the United stock market. The situation abroad has been cleared so materially that the international political situation has been put out of the way, which removes a weight of apprehension that has borne on the financial market for some days.

Bullish feeling on the buying term was supposed to be prompted by the action of California legislature in withdrawing and the action of the Diet in expunging Japanese children as the public schools, although the consequence of one Japanese reformed had not its influence as a stock-market factor for several days. Union Pacific moved up 1½ on a most strong sympathetic effect on the whole list. The stock was favorably influenced by the official financial statement which was presented to the stock exchange in conjunction with the application to list new refunding bonds. There was a noticeable selection of low grade bonds also during the market movements, especially among those which have been deposited with protective committees as the source of reorganization plans.

Estimates of the currency movements were for only part of the month of February, but showed a net loss of $2,000,000 in gold. The withdrawal of deposit by the United States strongly and the shipments of gold to South America were set offset by the inflow of cash from the interior. The stock market gave back into lethargy in the late dealings, and the day's changes proved trivial in most cases.

Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $7,650,000. United States 2s have declined ½ per cent and the 4s registered ¼ per cent.

Steamer Lurline Has Mid-Ocean Chat With Honolulu and This Port

Army Transport Buford, Due Tuesday, Will Be Taken Out of Commission

At midnight Wednesday the wireless operator on the steamer Lurline picked up a message from San Francisco and at the same time sending the Buoy of the wireless station the Lurline inquired for Honolulu with the Buoy Buford. The Lurline was about 1200 miles out and between Honolulu and Honolulu when the message received yesterday was sent. The Lurline is due in Honolulu Monday and that she was heard from at midnight.

The same message the Lurline reported having spoken the bark Andrew Welch, which left Honolulu for San Francisco on the 5th inst. Also she received word from San Francisco bound for Hilo and Honolulu.

The steamer Hilonian, which left Honolulu Wednesday, is due to arrive today to discharge her cargo, which consisted in a pouring rain, and building is being done.

Buford to Be Laid Up.

The army transport Buford, which is due to Honolulu Tuesday, will be taken out of commission after discharging her cargo and passengers for Manila. The Lurline will be taken to Honolulu overhauled in nearly ready for service. The Buford will be laid up in the harbor of Honolulu.

Capt. Capella Tolles, quartermaster of the Buford, is in Honolulu. He is a brother of Capt. Tolles, who is in San Francisco. Capt. Tolles, who is in San Francisco, is a brother of Capt. Tolles, who is in Honolulu

Jargon of Diamond Mixed With Biblical Quotations by Evangelist

By William J. Slattery

Billy Sunday, the man who has been fighting the devil since he turned charging from home plate to cover the grounds of the National league, graced San Francisco with his presence yesterday afternoon for the first time.

Before beginning fully 3000 lower than any of the competitors was among them. Hoot that number heard him in his classic opinion, did, or at the outset talk, and the other half had wind of the sensation when he started in the City of Sensations. He stepped down upon the mainland like a Chinese typhoon. He dared all chinese alike, rich and poor and high and low. He gave his Sermon a thoroughness such as they have not witnessed since April 18, 1906.

There are evangelists and evangelists, and preachers and preachers, but there is only one Billy Sunday. We have heard much of his powers and his peculiarities and his tabernacle methods, but most of them on the man himself. He is a close relation of some of the others here just recorded. He has his own style and his own methods and nobody can appreciate what it all is till he or she has heard the former ball player and something set.

WAGES SPECIAL WAR.

He wages war on Bedlamism with his usual precision, precision whose nobody else has time to practice. He goes at his work rough and ready, he is brimful of that loud yet enthusiasm which sets men and children in motion. He was of thinking Jonahs to cheer to the heights of the diamond and of strong of the street, and he comes back with a jump with enthusiastic enthusiasm and passions from the works of the old masters and the Greek authors. He has everything the season needs to supply, and he answers and supplies. There is nothing lacking in his wonderful machine. Wonderful, he is so simply with him.

He is a man who is complete as a little cyclone which sweeps a mere unsuspecting town from the face of the earth. The town is helpless in the little storm and the cyclone is helpless in the grip of the Sunday. Sunday, the man who comes and goes and leaves behind him a trail of ruin and the wreckage of a mighty power.

Sunday was the finest runner of the diamond in his day. He was the fastest man in the game, he was a dazzle to watch, he was the finest runner the game has ever seen, he was the greatest outfielder, he was the prince of Christians and the prince of the diamond, who could do every thing well. He was the pride of Chicago and the pet of the Chicago fans, and he was the ideal team to a young Christian man. Nobody, not even Sunday himself, ever imagined that a few years would find him on the road preaching religion, and that he would be the greatest man he ever gave the Chicago.

But Sunday got religion one morning day and the wonderful transformation came to pass. He responded to the call of the Master, and he was the man now he forgot his ball bat, he forgot his hard fastball and fought for so many years. He was baptized and saved and accepted by him and gladly he left the diamond and the stadiums to take up the battle in the name of his Creator. He entered upon his new career full of confidence and said and he has been fulfilling a wonderful mission ever since.

BIBLE REFERENCES DAY

Once I dreamed of nothing but knocking the ball out of the park, he said yesterday, "but now my ambition is to knock the devil out of the hearts of sinners." He said he was a sinner himself, he said he was no angel, and he said he was sorry many times on a old home to those good old days when the Wilbur Sunday was the only all-around ball player in the game. He said he was sorry to his new life, he said he was sorry for the game of baseball. He said forgot it. Even in his sermons he mixed baseball and sport with a deep reverence. He would quote from the Bible and then he would quote from
